The Boss Baby Club

It is a type of 'save as well as relish' endeavor in which many ladies (usually from the same community or extended family or ethnic resemblance) get together to pool a specific part of a fixed sum. The words of all the women are composed on chits that are then tucked and seated in a box. One chit is removed, and whoever is the lucky lady with her name carried out steps away with the ordered amount. Before or after this way, there are games and lotto to play, talk to share, and a magnificent lunch to relish. The woman hosting the kitty party in Panchkula who accepted last month's group delivers the bill. The exact thing gets replicated the next month.

The prior month's winner is the following month's hostess. Those who have won earlier get their names withdrawn from the chit-bowl (they go on providing their financial assistance, though). This way, every woman gets her turn to get a collaborative amount and show as the hostess.
